

IN THE COURT OF APPEALS
FIRST APPELLATE DISTRICT OF OHIO
HAMILTON COUNTY, OHIO

RONALD FLEMING,	:	APPEAL NO. C-090107
	:	TRIAL NO. SP-0800608
Petitioner-Appellant,	:
	:	JUDGMENT ENTRY.
vs.	:
STATE OF OHIO,	:
	:
Respondent-Appellee.	:

We consider this appeal on the accelerated calendar, and this judgment entry is not an opinion of the court.<sup>1</sup>

In 1987, in Franklin County, Ohio, petitioner-appellant Ronald Fleming pleaded guilty to and was convicted of attempted rape. Before he was released from prison in 1999, he was returned to court for a sexual-offender-classification hearing, and he was designated a sexually-oriented offender. Under former R.C. Chapter 2950, after his release Fleming was required to annually register as a sexual offender for ten years.

Fleming received a notice from the Ohio Attorney General stating that he had been reclassified under Am.Sub.S.B. No. 10 (“Senate Bill 10”) as a Tier III sex offender and that he was required to register with the local sheriff every 90 days for life. Fleming filed an R.C. 2950.031(E) petition to contest his reclassification, challenging the constitutionality of Senate Bill 10. He also filed an R.C. 2950.11(F)(2) motion for immediate relief from the community-notification provisions. The trial court ultimately granted Fleming's R.C. 2950.11(F)(2) motion, exempting him from community notification. After a hearing, the trial court overruled Fleming's constitutional challenges to Senate Bill 10 and denied his petition.

---

<sup>1</sup> See S.Ct.R.Rep.Op. 3(A), App.R. 11.1(E), and Loc.R. 12.

Fleming's first assignment of error, which alleges that the retroactive application of Senate Bill 10's tier-classification and registration requirements violates the constitutional ban on ex post facto laws, is overruled.

"The Ex Post Facto Clause applies only to criminal statutes."<sup>2</sup> We held in Sewell v. State<sup>3</sup> that the tier-classification and registration provisions of Senate Bill 10 are remedial and not punitive, and that they do not have the effect of converting a remedial statute into a punitive one. Because Senate Bill 10's classification and registration provisions are civil and remedial, not criminal, they do not violate the constitutional ban on ex post facto laws.

Fleming's second, third, and fourth assignments of error are overruled because the retroactive application of Senate Bill 10's tier-classification and registration requirements does not violate the prohibition on retroactive laws contained in Section 28, Article II of the Ohio Constitution, the Double Jeopardy Clause of the Ohio Constitution, or the separation-of-powers doctrine.<sup>4</sup> Fleming's arguments under the United States Constitution are also overruled on Sewell's reasoning.

Fleming's fifth assignment of error is overruled. Fleming has no standing to challenge Senate Bill 10's residency restriction because he has not shown that he lives in or owns property within the restricted area or that he has been forced to move outside

---

<sup>2</sup> See State v. Cook, 83 Ohio St.3d 404, 1998-Ohio-291, 700 N.E.2d 570, citing California Dept. of Corrections v. Morales (1995), 514 U.S. 499, 504, 115 S.Ct. 1597, and Collins v. Youngblood (1990), 497 U.S. 37, 43, 110 S.Ct. 2715.

<sup>3</sup> 181 Ohio App.3d 280, 2009-Ohio-872, 908 N.E.2d 995.

<sup>4</sup> Id.

the restricted area.<sup>5</sup> We note that the Ohio Supreme Court held in Hyle v. Porter<sup>6</sup> that because the residency restriction in former R.C. 2950.031 was not expressly made retrospective, it could not be applied to an offender who had bought his home and committed his offense before the effective date of the statute.

The sixth and seventh assignments of error are overruled because there is no evidence in the record that Fleming's registration requirement was a term of any plea agreement. Therefore, the retroactive application of Senate Bill 10's tier-classification and registration requirements does not impair any contract between Fleming and the state or violate his constitutional right to contract.

The eighth assignment of error, alleging that the retroactive application of Senate Bill 10's registration requirements constitutes cruel and unusual punishment, is overruled because the statutes are civil and remedial, not punitive.<sup>7</sup> Therefore, the registration requirements cannot be viewed as punishment.<sup>8</sup>

Therefore, the judgment of the trial court is affirmed.

Further, a certified copy of this judgment entry shall constitute the mandate, which shall be sent to the trial court under App.R. 27. Costs shall be taxed under App.R. 24.

HENDON, P.J., SUNDERMANN and MALLORY, JJ.

To the Clerk:

Enter upon the Journal of the Court on February 3, 2010 per order of the Court _____.

Presiding Judge

---

<sup>5</sup> See State v. Randlett, 4th Dist. No. 08CA3046, 2009-Ohio-112; State v. Swank, 11th Dist. No. 2008-L-019, 2008-Ohio-6059; State v. Duncan, 3rd Dist. No. 7-08-03, 2008-Ohio-5830.

<sup>6</sup> 117 Ohio St.3d 165, 2008-Ohio-542, 882 N.E.2d 899.

<sup>7</sup> See Sewell v. State, supra, at fn. 3.

<sup>8</sup> See id.; State v. Williams, 12th Dist. No. CA2008-02-029, 2008-Ohio-6195; State v. Byers, 7th Dist. No. 07 CO 39, 2008-Ohio-5051.