

Have you ever wondered where Suspension Bridge Road, in Whitewater Township, got its name? This Suspension Bridge was built in 1869.

This is the original cornerstone.

The suspension bridge was demolished in 1920 and this truss bridge was built in its place. This bridge bridge was demolished in 1920 and this truss bridge was built in its place. This bridge has since been replaced.

Rybolt Road - December, 1941

Today, Rybolt Road is a vital connection for the people living in Green Township, with I-74. Of course, things weren't always that way. These pictures were taken on December 3rd 1941, four days before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. They are all in the vicinity of Hayes Road.

In 1946 - the Delhi Fire Department on Neeb Road.

An unidentified section of Eight Mile Road in 1937.

Hamilton County Engineer's Office employees at the Woodlawn Division in 1946.

The vegetation spraying crew with Truck 71 on Clough Pike in 1942.

Steam shovel ditching in the 6000 block of Blue Rock Road in 1945.

The construction of Loveland Madeira Road - August 3, 1937.
Intersection of Loveland Madeira and Hopewell Road.

Beyond this bridge you can see the roadbed for the new construction. This looks to be the intersection of Loveland Madeira Road and Kemper Road.

Wyoming Avenue in Lockland -
February 5, 1937.

County crew building a curb in front of the stadium in Lockland.

Witt Road in Anderson Township
May 18, 1937.

Muddy Creek Road Construction - May 24, 1937
Looking down from Devil's Backbone Road

Stewart Road in Columbia Township/Silverton - January 29, 1937

A notation on this photograph says "1000 feet south of Ehrling Road looking south". Since Ehrling Road no longer intersects with Stewart Road, that would locate this view at the present day intersection with I-71.

Lebanon Road in Symmes Township/Loveland - August 3, 1937

In the distance, is the intersection of Lebanon Road and Loveland Madeira Road

Plainville Road in Columbia Township/Mariemont - May 26, 1937

At Murray Avenue looking north

At Grace Avenue looking north

At Cambridge Street looking north

Fuhrman Road in Reading - June 22, 1937

Before the bridge was built, there was a ford on Fuhrman Road

The intersection with Hunt Road is in the distance

